CLASS DEFINITION

This class includes the instruments used in producing music and includes (1) electrical music instruments, (2) automatic instruments, and (3) those hand played. The automatic instruments and the hand played instruments have a parallel classification so far as seems practical, and in both the patents are divided in the usual way into four groups, stringed, wind, rigid vibrators, and membranes. Then follow details of features common to groups (1), (2), and (3). This class also includes some accessory devices not generally recognized as belonging to the art or industry.
